

100
YEAR
Celebration of CAREER
GUIDANCE & EDUCATION

Thank You for 100 Years of Career Development Leadership!

It's the Research, Innovation, Expertise, & Practice that Guides Our Work.

In 1908, Frank Parsons established the first vocational guidance clinic and outlined the basic principals of career choice, providing a comprehensive framework for the successful practice of career guidance and education today.

One hundred years later, we honor his work and the contribution of other renown leaders that have guided the field of career guidance, education, and development with a year of celebratory events.

The launch of the year long celebration will begin April 1, 2008 at the National Press Club in Washington, D.C. and continue throughout the year.
